Grand Council of Royal And Select Masters Are In Convention Here

Some 200 Delegates Present When Mayor Heiselman Welcomes Visitors to the 113th Annual Assembly in Kingston.

BANQUET TONIGHT

Banquet at Stuyvesant Hotel This Evening Will Be Open to All Masons of the City.

The 113th annual assembly of the Grand Council of Royal and Select Masters of New York State opened at Masonic Hall, Wall street, at 9:30 this morning, the meeting to continue all day today, with a banquet at the Stuyvesant Hotel at 7:30 this evening.

Some 200 or more delegates were present this morning when A. Edward Krueger of Salamanca, grand master of the New York Grand Council, with the other Grand Council officers, made their entrance and assumed their stations.

Samuel Stern, past master of Ancient City Council, No. 21, of Kingston, the entertaining council, presented Mayor Conrad J. Heiselman of Kingston. The mayor cordially welcomed the visitors to the city. Referring to the fact that Masonry is a very ancient institution, the mayor reminded the visitors that the Lodge, Kingston Lodge, No. 10, in whose rooms they were meeting, was one of the oldest lodges in the country and that likewise the city in which they were gathered, although modern and up-to-date, was one of the oldest settlements in New York state. Mayor Heiselman suggested that today, when the world is being rent asunder by hatred and fear, it is a good thing to have organizations such as the Masonic fraternity, which is founded on teachings of brotherly love and morality. In closing he expressed the hope that their deliberations would be blessed by the Supreme Architect of the Universe, and any action they might take would be for the glory of God and the welfare of their beloved country. He said that he hoped they would enjoy their visit to Kingston and invited them to "come again."

Fred F. Ricster, master of Ancient City Council, in well-chosen words, then extended to the guests a hearty welcome on behalf of the home council, following which the Grand Council was formally opened.

The Grand Council was honored at the opening this morning by the presence of Jacob C. Klink, grand master of Masons of the State of New York, who brought greetings and felicitations from the Grand Lodge. The Grand Master was forced to speak briefly as he had to leave Kingston shortly after ten o'clock to attend a funeral in the city. In order to allow him to have as much time as possible the addresses of welcome which had marked the opening had been made brief.

The balance of the morning session was devoted to the reception of visitors, many prominent Masons of New York and other states being present, the appointment of committees and other routine business.

At one o'clock delegates and visitors repaired to St. James M. E. Church, where luncheon was served.

The business session was resumed at two o'clock, when committee reports were received and action taken and officers were elected and installed.

Banquet Tonight

The banquet at the Stuyvesant Hotel this evening will be open to all Masons of the city.

New Law on Signal Devices for Trucks and Reflectors on Autos Explained by Motor Vehicle Head

Commissioner Harnett Explains in Bulletin About Trucks That Will Be Required to Use Mechanical Signalling Device, September 1—Reflectors for Pleasure Cars, Seven Passenger or Less, Must Be Used, Starting October 1.

Penalties Increased For Reckless Driving

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 31 (P)—New York state's new law increasing penalties for reckless driving and tightening up the investigations of fatal automobile accidents becomes effective tomorrow. Capt. Albert B. Moore of the state police reminded motorists today.

Capt. Moore said that a driver who causes a fatal accident in which any trace of criminal negligence or recklessness is found, will be held by state police until the accident is fully investigated.

State police will arrest the driver in such cases, and notify the bureau of criminal investigation. Capt. Moore added. He explained that before the new law was passed, many drivers involved in such accidents were permitted to go free until a coroner's inquest.

Capt. Moore also said the penalties for reckless driving convictions would be increased under the new law. A first conviction will bring a maximum fine of $100 or a maximum jail sentence of 30 days.

A second conviction within 18 months calls for a minimum fine of $50 and a maximum of $250 or 90 days in jail or both. A third conviction in 18 months carries a minimum fine of $100 and a maximum of $500 or 180 days in jail or both, and revocation of the driving license.

Ickes' Foster Son Shoots Himself, Found by Gardener

Chicago, Aug. 31 (P)—Wilmarth Ickes, 37-year-old son of Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, was found shot to death today in his step-father's suburban Winnetka home on the first anniversary of the death of his mother, Mrs. Anna Wilmarth Ickes.

Police Sergeant Harold Lewis of the suburb said "unquestionably it is suicide." The official said a .380 automatic pistol was on Ickes' chest.

Young Ickes recently learned he had tuberculosis. Interior Department officials said in Washington. Winnetka police also thought he might have brooded over the death of his mother near Velarde, N. M., when an automobile in which she was riding was overturned.

Secretary Ickes immediately boarded a plane at Washington for Chicago.

Wilmarth Ickes' wife, the former Elizabeth Dahlman of Milwaukee, was notified of the tragedy as she returned to Chicago from a lake cruise. With her were their children, Donald, 12, Anna, 10, and Barbara, 6.

The body was found by Eric Magnuson, gardener and caretaker of the elder Ickes' estate.

The cabinet member formally adopted Wilmarth after his marriage to Mrs. Ickes. Wilmarth's father, Prof. James Westphal Thompson, then in the Department of English at the University of Chicago, was divorced in 1939.

Magnuson had been in the habit of awakening Wilmarth each morning. Today, Magnuson said, Ickes was stretched across a bed, a pistol on his chest, and a powder-burned bullet hole through the right temple.

A few minutes later, as Mrs. Ickes and the children arrived in Chicago, the caretaker told them by telephone of the tragedy.

Ickes' mother was an outstanding Republican and had served several terms in the Illinois House of Representatives.

Besides his immediate family and his foster-father, Wilmarth is survived by a full brother and sister, Robert Ickes and Mrs. Regula M. Bryant of Evanston, and a half-brother, Raymond Ickes, the son of the secretary and his wife, Robert and Mrs. Bryant both took the Ickes name after their mother remarried.

Capt. Harry C. Ebdell of the Winnetka police said his investigation would be confined to questioning Mrs. Ickes and Dr. Frank Blatchford, the victim's physician.

An inquest will be held at 9:30 a.m. (EST) tomorrow in nearby Evanston at an undertaking establishment, to which the body was removed today.

Treasury Receipts

Washington, Aug. 31 (P)—The position of the treasurers on August 24: Receipts, $14,140,062,422; penditures, $17,972,129,822; balance, $3,831,188,824.54. Customs receipts for the fiscal year (since July 1), $864,056,258.47; expenditures, $266,778,008.50; of emergency expenditures, $24,510,455.24; excess debits, $22,742,301.50. Under the previous day's position, "On Deck,"

One of the first men "on deck" as delegates gathered at Masonic Hall this morning was John Hein of Kingston. John Hein, known to nearly everybody in Kingston, and a good many outside of the city, as well, having for over 50 years conducted a popular barbershop to the detriment of the Victor County Savings Institution building, has a good record for faithful service.

Republican Rally Draws 500 to Leggett Estate at Stone Ridge on Saturday

Crowd Applauds John Calvin Brown's Speech Criticizing New Deal and Asking for More Prudent Administration.

OTHER SPEAKERS

Philip Elting Recommends Ulster-Like Government in National Affairs.

More than 500 men and women braved the inclement weather Saturday afternoon to hear John Calvin Brown of the national bureau of Republican speakers, and president of the Minute Men in 1928, deliver an impressive address supporting Alfred M. Landon for the presidency, at the Leggett Estate in Stone Ridge.

Mr. Brown, who cracked down on the New Deal and other phases of the Franklin D. Roosevelt administration, was the principal speaker at the Republican rally on the spacious and beautiful Leggett place with Mrs. Hollister Sturges as hostess. His scholarly address was applauded long after he had taken his seat beneath a display of sunflowers that decked the porch of the old mansion.

Other prominent Republicans, who either spoke or took a bow when introduced by Fred Stang, clerk of the board of supervisors, who was master of ceremonies, were Congressman Philip H. Goodwin, Senator Arthur H. Wicks, Assemblyman J. Edward Conway, District Attorney Cleon B. Murray, County Clerk James A. Simpson, Philip Elting, Republican leader of Ulster county, William E. Bruyn of Gardner, one of the presidential electors, and Miss Dexter, an attorney from Westchester.

The program was opened by rendition of "The Star Spangled Banner" by Mrs. Mabel Wicks, wife of Senator Wicks, who invited the assemblage to join in the second verse and chorus.

Although Mr. Brown consumed approximately an hour to deliver his speech, the time passed quickly, it seemed, because of the importance of the discourse and the excellent manner of his delivery. Excerpts from the speech follow:

American is still the richest piece of well equipped property on earth and it was developed, equipped and paid for by our ancestors, and turned over to us as the richest going concern ever known. And all we had to do was to let it run and spend its bountiful profits.

We were so well fed and comfortable that we went to sleep and paid no attention to government, and in a short generation we have allowed rich estate to be completely wrecked.

Our country is just as rich as she ever was and we have glut of surpluses of everything to eat, wear and use and yet 40 millions of our people are standing knee deep in this clover-field and starving to death.

Not only are our nation, states and cities buried in mountains of debts, but almost all of our industries and individuals are up to their eyes in debts, and everyone is worried and miserable.

We are all business men and women and we are all endowed with proverbial American common sense; and if we would only dust it off and use it again, we could get on our feet.

If we want to decide what ought to be done all we have to do is to remember two plain, homely business rules.

One—we cannot borrow, spend automobile in which she was riding struck a fire truck in that city.

Mrs. Charles O'Connor, 41, of Springfield, Mass., was injured fatally when struck by an automobile at Indian Castle, near Little Falls.

Mrs. Violet C. Haney, 77, of Buffalo, was fatally injured when an automobile in which she was riding struck a fire truck in that city.

Mrs. Charles Duman, of Detroit, Mich., was killed in the collision of an automobile and a truck on Lebanon Mountain, on the New York street. Francis McCarthy, 23, of Rochester, the driver, told police, he turned into a narrow alley along the canal seeking a short cut, when the wheels skidded off the road and the machine plunged beneath the water.

McCarthy swam to safety.

Three other women were among the week-end victims.

One unidentified man about 50, believed to be a bithacker, died when he was struck by an automobile and a truck on Lebanon Mountain, on the New York street. Francis McCarthy, 23, of Rochester, the driver, told police, he turned into a narrow alley along the canal seeking a short cut, when the wheels skidded off the road and the machine plunged beneath the water.

Charles H. Hawkins, 47, of North Tonawanda, was crushed to death when his car hit a tree near his home.

Studer Honored At Ft. Hancock

Carl J. Studer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl J. Studer of 64 Boulevard, Kingston, and a student at Kingston High School, has been awarded for athletic progress at Fort Hancock, N. J., where he is a member of the Citizens' Military Training Camp.

Young Studer has won gold medals in several classes of athletics, helping Battery B to which he belongs, to win the Colonel Elliott Warren trophy for excelling in athletics during one month of camp. The battery was five out of nine regiments.

Another contributor to the great athletic success of Battery B was Robert C. White, 124 Main street, Saugerties, who captained the baseball team.

Besides winning athletic honors, Carl Studer was among 33 who passed Red Cross Life Saving tests.

WHO PAYS THE BILL?

One of the commonest fallacies of popular economics is that which asserts it is possible to take the taxes off the rich man and give the benefits to the poor. Since the time when Robin Hood gained popularity by "shaking down" the wealthy citizen and distributing some of the plunder to those who needed it, there have been statesmen of varying degrees of honesty and intelligence who have posed as great friends of the downtrodden masses proposing to take the wealth of the rich through taxation or by more direct methods, and to give it to their less fortunate brethren.

Yet the fact remains that after all in every order of society, the cost of government must be borne, through taxation, by the consumer. This is inevitable and seems all the more true of federal as distinctive from local governments.

Let us for a moment look at our own modern record. Recently published statistics say that every dollar spent last year by the government at Washington represented something like the following in the way of taxes: Seven cents from personal income taxes; eight cents from corporation taxes; six cents from liquor taxes; the same amount from tobacco taxes; seven cents from processing taxes; five cents from excise taxes; five cents from customs duties; three cents from estate and gift taxes; four cents from all other forms of taxes.

Now it is not difficult to run over this list and to figure up just how much of the total is borne by the "poor consumer." The proportion is both respectable and disconcerting in size. Even the eight cents from corporation taxes, come in great measure from the man who had to buy the goods produced by the corporation. Some more of the eight comes out of the dividends that ought to go to the stockholder, and be him passed on into the channels of trade.

Of course if all of the dollar unit spent by Washington was raised in taxes it wouldn't seem so bad as there would be a good chance of balancing the budget. Unfortunately, all of the taxes, listed above, amount to only 51 cents out of the dollar. The other 49 cents are borrowed. And the more the government spends the more it must borrow and the greater becomes the amount which will have to be paid off by our present taxpayers and their children.

The total debt at the end of the fiscal year, on July 30, was placed at $23,775,542,492. This is a new all-time high and represents an obligation on the part of every citizen with a family of three, in the sum of $735. Before the World War each family's liability was $36. The miscellaneous taxes, which are included in the 51 cents out of each dollar, as listed above, continue to grow steadily and they are the ones which hit the poor man the hardest. From 14 cents out of the dollar in 1914, this form of taxation has now risen to 51 cents out of the dollar. Do the rich pay the taxes? Well, if you think so you have another think coming.

BEAVERS GIVE HELP

Forrest rangers at Bear Mountain, N. Y., have able allies in fighting fires. They have been helped by a colony of several hundred beavers. By their damming operations the busy little builders are said to have saved large sections of brush land and stored up water supplies for the park employees to use in putting out blazes. In this way five fires were extinguished in one week recently.

The value of these canny and resourceful creatures for such purposes has often been suggested by naturalists, but efforts to repeople the woods and mountains with them as a conservation policy have seldom been taken seriously. For their own sake, as one of our most interesting and charming types of wild life, preservation and multiplication of beavers is definitely worth encouraging, too and Ellenville, respectively.

ing. Their services as builders of water reservoirs helping to check forest fires is so much to the good. No one need grudge them the little timber they destroy for food and for their own construction projects.

BREAKING LAWS

John Coates, aged 19, of New York, might be designated as a law-breaker if charges against him are true. John is accused of driving while intoxicated, vehicular assault, reckless driving, driving without a license, driving without registration certificate, passing a red light, driving east on a west-bound one-way street, leaving the scene of an accident, and—homicide.

It's remarkable what a lawless record a fellow may acquire in a few minutes, under the influence of a few drinks.

SEX EQUALITY

With women demanding complete equality for a generation, they begin to take at their word. Women have long been suing men for breach of promise to marry. Now a man in Palmyra, following a few precedents, sues a girl for turning him down after she had accepted him.

So we get equality in court, and in courting. And it's all logical enough. But that doesn't save a brave man, upholding the rights of his sex, from a lot of kidding.

TOUGH ON THE TAXPAYER

Some time ago, Rexford Tugwell appeared before the senate committee on appropriations to plead for a deficiency appropriation so he could keep on playing with the socialistic "subsistence homestead" projects. A report on the hearings has been made public. It discloses these facts:

According to the original estimate, the homesteads were to cost about $2,000 per family.

Dr. Tugwell admitted to the committee that those built near Houston, Tex., were really costing $6,000 for each of the 100 families accommodated. The 200 at Jersey Homesteads were costing $7,850 each, the 165 at Arthurdale, W. Va., $10,370 each; the 170 at Tygart Valley, W. Va., $11,143 each, and those at Sioux Falls, Ia., $20,584 each.

This runs into money. The expense alone would take care of a lot of drought victims. And Tugwell admitted that there is no chance for the government to "recover" any of the money from the homesteaders. They haven't got it. The rest of us will sweat and pay.—Detroit Free Press.

HARD ON PARASITES

The city of Dunkirk, New York, has just taken over the administration of relief as a local concern. Five clerks are doing the work formerly performed under the Federal Emergency Relief Bureau by forty, and the taxpayers of Dunkirk are saving $10,000 a month.

Were the same ratio of savings to be applied to New York city a monthly saving of approximately $1,000,000 would be possible without depriving a single relief client of a loaf of bread. Of course it might prove a trifling hard on the political parasites who now find relief administration something of a bonanza.—Washington, D. C., Herald.

WITHOUT AAA WHAT?

Wheat is a major farm product that might be doing better had there been no AAA.

The current wheat crop, as now estimated, falls some eighty to a hundred million bushels below normal requirements. This deficiency will either have to be taken out of the carry-over or be made up through imports. Had there been no AAA the surplus would have been larger and there would have been no need to think of importing wheat.—Baltimore Sun.

THE WORLD WITH A FENCE

A New Novel by Morris Sims

OPENING Carol Terrence taught school at Ashboro a while, and one reason she left to take a job in Atlanta, Georgia, advertised in the newspaper, was because she wanted to forget that she loved Davis Ford. Now she is slowly drifting back home with Blake and with her and mother can do anything. Carol is married to a soft-spoken, somewhat much older than himself. Carol is to be bridegroom at Ellen Banks' wedding; the festivities have begun.

Chapter 23

WEDDING ELLEN'S house was alive and seething, and the hub of its activity was gales herself.

Ellen was again a dynamo; giving orders, superintending every detail—even to cataloguing the gifts that poured in. Mack was there, blissful and bewildered, following on her heels like a big dovel puppy. His most important job, he confided to Carol with a grin, was saving expense and string so that the presents could be shipped to Ashboro.

"I never saw so much stuff," he said in an awe-struck voice. "Looks to me like we'll more than make expenses."

Ben arrived Friday afternoon, fat and smiling and bald. He kissed Carol and Ellen roundly, and Carol noticed that he had already begun his pre-nuptial drinking.

"Well, well," he laughed, "it took a wedding to bring us all together again."

He was presented to the family, whom Carol had found disappointing. Mrs. Sands was small and limp and rather lost in the confusion; Mr. Sands was tall and quiet, with a druggist's pallor. Margaret, the younger sister, was like her mother, with a youthful freshness that still masked the resemblance. Ellen, Carol reflected, must have drawn upon some remote ancestor for her vitality and charm.

The armor of his own indifference was pierced at times by bewilderment. She acts, he thought, as if she was afraid I would assault her.

He speculated several times on the nature of her trouble—correctly, had he but known it—but he put aside the answer as improbable. Irma had always revelled in her nervousness; it made her tremendously important to herself, and fed upon her ravenously.

The rehearsal lasted three hours, and Carol had to be the bride because it would have been bad luck for Ellen to rehearse. Walking down the aisle to the throbbing strains of "Lohengrin" was a disturbing experience, she discovered, as she looked at the small boy, or at Ben's bald head, to distract her thoughts.

Mack's arm, linked in hers, was strong and steady, and Mack's young face was illumined. I should have come, she thought, matching her step to Mack's; this is no place for a girl who has to keep her mind on her work.... Even her dislike for pageants could not entirely dispel the glamor or blind her to the implications of the occasion.

There was a party after the rehearsal, at which the rest of the men and three girls joined Ben in his cups. She wanted to step from the audience into the ring with them—but her first intimation of drunkenness drove her, as always, back into herself.

The cake was cut, and remembering her promise to Freddie she put aside her slice to take home with her. Somebody yelled:

"Hey, you've got to see if there's anything in it!" And amid shouts of excitement crumbled the cake and discovered a small brass ring.

Ben shouted, "I am a man. I knew fate was bringin' us together again. Carol you've got to marry me!"

CAUSE OF STOMACH DISTRESS. The cake was over finally, and Carol slipped gladly into bed. One more day, she thought, and I can go back to Atlanta—and the office....

The ceremony went off without a hitch. Even the ring bearer was awed into obedience by the solemnity of the occasion. Several of the groomsmen were hilarious, but steady enough to walk straight and keep their places in the tableau.

Ellen said "I do" in a clear voice and Mack, with his eyes on her face, said it in a voice that was not so clear. There was a reception at the Sands home afterwards, and finally there was the calm that follows a storm.

Mrs. Sands collapsed into a chair and took off her shoes. "I hope when you get married, Margaret," she said plaintively, "that you'll run away and be my maid of honor."

Mrs. Sands looked white and weary. Carol noticed with a throb of pity for her complaining. Mrs. Sands had liked it: marrying off a daughter was the proper thing, and she felt sorry for the woman who had not yet achieved it. But Mrs. Sands looked desolate: Ellen was his favorite, and he knew that getting married was not the best women seemed to think it. In Mrs. Sands' opinion, men hadn't a Chinaman's chance to escape.

OPENING A horse voice said "Carol..." and stopped.

The voice was unrecognizable.

"This is Harry. I hate like the devil to disturb you at this hour, but..." Harry's voice snapped in two, and then with the jagged remnant he went on.

(Copyright 1936 by Morris Sims)

Tomorrow, Carol goes in one of the most circuitous days of her life.

OPENING Mongolia.

The so-called People's Republic of Outer Mongolia came into existence in 1921, when Russia's red army troops entered this vast, sparsely populated territory in pursuit of the forces of the white leader, General Ungern von Sternberg.

His international status has been highly anomalous. Theoretically it is still part of China, but no Chinese official may set foot there.

The country in the last few years has been tormented almost all foreigners except Russians.

Betsy was undeniably an attractive child. A round face with two merry blue eyes looked out from between two long braids. She had individuality and style, and no one failed to notice her.

But Betsy wanted to look very different. She longed to wear curlers and to look romantic, and wove endless tales in which she always had typhoid, and after a long and lingering illness recovered with tight curls all over her head.

Victory?
The years have flown, yes, twenty-two—brimful of work and fun; And we forget it's that long since the World War was begun. Ah! We forget—but what about those men who bought our peace? The ones who died: the crippled ones, whose sufferings won't cease? The men who never see their most beloved—or aksens—or trees? They sacrificed their sight in war! What compensates for these? Let's face the facts: We gained some debts; gave lives of happiness. Do you, my friend, believe that war was really a success?

Mac Thistle—Well, there's the clothes closet. Open it and count them.

The two qualities most important in getting along moderately well are the power to stick and the ability to adjust.

His Wife's Mother—I nearly died laughing at that story you told.

Mr. Peter—That so? Listen; I'm going to tell you a few more.

LABOR'S 'L' PROBLEM

Labor, Taking Stock, Finds Its Ranks Split

By JOSEPH L. MILLER.

Washington, Sept. 7 (AP)—Organized labor turned its back on one turbulent year today only to face the prospect of another.

The battle to eliminate unemployment is not yet won. The fight for a better living is endless. The struggle for security in hard times, old age and sickness still goes on, as does the fight for the right to organize.

Unemployment Down.

Organized labor leaders for the seventh successive Labor Day said today that unemployment headed their list of fundamental problems. The A. F. of L. estimates 11,138,000 still were jobless in June this year, compared with 12,389,000 in June, 1935, and 15,652,887 in March, 1933, the low point of the depression.

A. F. of L. vs. C. I. O.

In one corner stands the American Federation of Labor, keystone of the organized labor movement in this country for more than 50 years. When the Knights of Labor collapsed, the federation was founded to skin off the cream. Craft unions of highly skilled workers were bound together in the federation by "a rope of sand" to promote common interests.

In another corner stands the Committee for Industrial Organization. This committee of officers of A. F. of L. unions thinks the craft form of organization is outmoded in the nation's vast mass production industries and that all mass production workers should be organized by industry rather than by craft.

Convention Fight Looms.

Committee unions, meanwhile, point to what they think are the mistakes of the standard unions and say they would rather be organized by plant than by industry or by craft.

The course of the battle between the A. F. of L. and the Committee for Industrial Organization probably will be determined at the federation's annual convention in Tampa, Fla., next November. The present sentiment of the federation's craft union rulers is to expel the 10 unions affiliated with the committee.

Amendment Drive Possible.

The social security act, to help the wage earner in his fight for security, is only partly in effect so far. Federation leaders are pushing state supplementary legislation to bring it into full effect before they decide whether to seek its amendment.

The courts now hold the fate of the Wagner-labor disputes act, designed to protect the right to organize with a federal guarantee.

Tentative Agreement.

To this end the federation still favors enactment of the Black-Connelly 30-hour week bill and revival of the NRA principle in some form or other. The Black-Connelly bill was shelved in the last session of congress, but a bill to apply NRA standards to certain government contracts was enacted. Thus government contract act becomes effective September 20.

Amendment Drive Possible.

To this end the federation still favors enactment of the Black-Connelly 30-hour week bill and revival of the NRA principle in some form or other. The Black-Connelly bill was shelved in the last session of congress, but a bill to apply NRA standards to certain government contracts was enacted. Thus government contract act becomes effective September 20.

Amendment Drive Possible.

The social security act, to help the wage earner in his fight for security, is only partly in effect so far. Federation leaders are pushing state supplementary legislation to bring it into full effect before they decide whether to seek its amendment.

The course of the battle between the A. F. of L. and the Committee for Industrial Organization probably will be determined at the federation's annual convention in Tampa, Fla., next November. The present sentiment of the federation's craft union rulers is to expel the 10 unions affiliated with the committee.

Hubbell Baffles Cubs in Opener, Ott's Homer Takes Nightcap, 8-6

By The Associated Press

The way things shape up now, those red-hot Giants are in a nice spot to ride into the National League pennant on Carl (Screwball) Hubbell's pitching arm, Mel (Little Feller) Ott's bat—and the breaks.

Anyway, Bill Terry's troupe is sporting a four-game lead on the second-place Cardinals today, because of those factors, while the Cubs are nursing a lot of sore spots down in third place—also because of the name.

With the worst of the western trip over, things look bright, from a Giant standpoint, for a subway series in New York. Of course, there are still two games to go with the Cubs and a pair with the Cards. But the worst that can happen will still leave the Giants in front when they go back to the Polo Grounds.

The doubleheader start of the "crucial" series, by which the Cubs hoped to chop the Giants' lead to one game yesterday, was mostly New York before it ended. "Screwball" Hubbell's elbowing baffled the Chicago champs in the opener to pull out a seven-hit, 6-1 decision, for the portside's 20th win of the campaign. The "Little Feller's" bat came through in the nightcap, blasting out homer number 28 with two mates aboard in the ninth inning to turn what seemed certain defeat into an 8-6 Giant win over Larry French.

This double defeat dropped the Cubs out of second, and pulled the Cards into the number two spot. The Gas House gang, with Dizzy Dean, as usual, gangster number one, clubbed the Dodgers 6-3 in the opener of their bargain bill, to gain an even break. Van Mungo allowed seven hits in the 13-inning nightcap for a 2-1 Dodger win.

The Yanks all but nailed the American League pennant to their mast by taking the White Sox in both ends of doubleheader, 8-1 and 4-1. Bump Hadley turned in his 12th win of the season in the opener, and Monte Pearson pitched three-hit ball in the nightcap. In which the Yanks came through against Vernon Kennedy's futile three-hit pitching with a four-run rally in the seventh inning.

Since the Boston Red Sox snapped out of their slump and nosed out the second-place Cleveland Indians in both games of their double bill, the Yanks' twin win boosted them 16 full games in front of the pack, and from here on in they have to play less than .500 ball.

Wes Ferrell, with the aid of Eric McNair's four hits, took the opener against the tribe, 3-2, while old Rube Walberg hurled a three-hitter for a 5-1 win in the nightcap, in which last week's "strikeout sensation," young Bob Feller, was rudely blasted from the hill in five innings.

The Tigers split with the Athletics, winning the nightcap 3-2 behind Tommy Bridges, after dropping the 13-inning opener 5-4, to advance to a third-place tie with the White Sox.

By getting the even break, the A's pulled out of the cellar for the first time in a month, and the Browns dropped in. The Senators shored the Brownies to the bottom by sweeping their two games, 5-4 and 7-4.

The Cincinnati Reds beat the Phillies twice, 6-3 and 4-3, to go back into fifth place in the National League, replacing the Bees.

Sausage of Middle Ages Made Tasty With Spices

The development of modern sausage took place mainly in Italy and the Germanic countries. These peoples had a real flair for the blending of flavors and developed techniques far in advance of other countries, according to an authority.

The warm climate of Italy led largely to the preparation of dry sausages preserved with salt and the more virile spices, such as pepper and garlic. Scarcely a city of any importance exists in Italy which does not have a type of sausage named after it—Milano, Bologna, Romano, Genoa, Salami, etc.

In Germany, the cooler climate and the use of caves led to the development of fresh and cooked sausages, most of them being adapted to frying. These varieties included bratwurst, liver sausage, blood sausage, head cheese and Berliner sausage (a ham sausage).

The Germans and Scandinavians were more partial to the milder spices than the Italians, but the rapid spread of the desire for sausage and its convenience for trade during the Middle ages led to a further competition for trade with the spice countries.

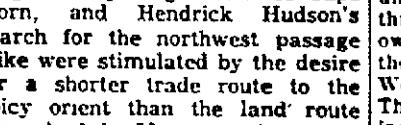

The motivating impulse in Columbus' discovery of America was the short route to the Spice countries of the Indies, while Magellan's passage south of Cape Horn, and Hendrick Hudson's search for the northwest passage alike were stimulated by the desire for a shorter trade route to the spicy orient than the land route through Asia Minor or the water route around Africa.

Remains Used Legal Seals

The seal played a great part in legal documents in ancient Rome and our own use of seals in legal documents is derived from the Roman practice.

Caesar Augustus authenticated his edicts with one or another of his signs, a sphinx, a head of Alexander or a signet bearing the likeness of his own head. Maecenas, the famous patron of literature, used as his seal a frog, a device then much dreaded as it was associated with fresh taxes.

Tax Rebel Signs Truce After 30-Year Battle

Memphis, Tenn. (AP)—Memphis' "millionaire pauper" has lost his title. No longer is Tom Collier either a millionaire or a pauper.

Of the Collier family's original 350-acre tract in the heart of Memphis' exclusive residential suburbs which he was unable to sell or develop because it was encumbered with tax claims:

Collier, his mother, Mrs. Alice Trezevant Collier, and a brother and sister retain clear title to 80 acres, their old home and a few other pieces of real estate, the total worth some $250,000.

City, County Get 200 Acres.

Memphis and Shelby county get more than 200 acres, mostly undeveloped, in settlement of claims for taxes, penalties, interest and attorneys' fees amounting to $750,000.

And Tennessee will receive from the city and county a cash settlement for its $19,000 tax claim against the Collier property.

With this agreement ends the 30-year battle "Fighting Tom" Collier, "champion of lost causes," has waged almost single-handed against the city, county and state to balk collection of taxes he charged were exorbitant and unfairly assessed.

Collier started his fight in 1906. Since then he has filed and fought out hundreds of tax suits. Most of his victories have been in the state supreme court; his defeats in the county courts.

Black Tie For Red.

Twice he has stood on the courthouse steps, flaunting a flaming red tie as a battle banner, and watched his property auctioned. Both times he regained control of it through supreme court reversals.

A short time ago he called a truce. Substituting a somber black tie for his red one, he "talked turkey" with the city.

Fifty-nine years old, Collier still holds to a life-long habit of running three miles barefoot several mornings each week, which may be responsible for victories in half a dozen physical encounters with political and legal foes, which often landed him in jail.

"Well, I got a 25-cent dinner out of the city—that's more than they have gotten out of me in 25 years of trying," he said after one of his trips to jail.

Another time he threatened to announce his candidacy for the mayorship from behind the bars.

"I'll announce as the people's jail walls.

Dance Hall Fracas Led To Arrest Here

Police Department Responded to Two

Calls To Fischer's Dance Hall on Abeel Street—One Man Treated at Hospital—Other Police Court Cases.

The police department responded to two calls to Fischer's Dance Hall on Abeel street, which led to two arrests being made, and one man being treated for cut on the face at the Kingston Hospital. The first call resulted in the arrest of Anthony Flore, 23, of 31 Hill street, on a charge of disorderly conduct. The arrest was made by John W. Schuster, bartender at the hall. Flore was accused of engaging in a fight with Thomas Coughlin. Coughlin was cut over the eye, and was taken to the Kingston Hospital where several stitches were taken to close the wound.

The second call to the police department resulted in the arrest of Philip Clark, 23, of Lake Katrine, also charged with disorderly conduct. Clark was arrested by Henry Wenzel, a waiter at the dance hall, who charged Clark with throwing chairs into the Rondout creek.

This morning in police court Flore pleaded not guilty and the hearing was adjourned to Thursday morning.

Mr. Clark was discharged when Mr. Wenzel withdrew the charge he had lodged against him.

Pleaded Not Guilty.

John McPhail, Jr., of 69 Chambers street and Cleveland Thomas of 17 West Strand, were arrested on a charge of staging a fight on East Strand. Both negroes pleaded not guilty and the hearing was adjourned to Tuesday morning.

Arrested for Speeding

J. Holland Gordan of East Orange, N. J., arrested for speeding 51 miles an hour on East Chester street, had his hearing set down for Tuesday.

Harold J. Marshall of Canajoharie, charged with speeding 50 miles an hour on the Boulevard, forfeited $15 cash bail by failing to appear.

John W. Clark of Hurley avenue charged with speeding 50 miles an hour on the Boulevard had his hearing set down for later.

Edward Corrigan of Wallington, N. J., was fined $2 for driving a car with four adults riding in the front seat.

Leonard A. Sedlow of Newark, N. J., arrested for speeding 49 miles an hour on East Chester street, forfeited $10 cash bail.

Fred T. Garrison of Onley, Va., charged with speeding 38 miles an hour hours on East Chester street, forfeited $10 cash bail.

Joseph T. Cinorelli of Newark, N. J., charged with speeding 43 miles an hour on East Chester street, had his hearing set down for September 5.

Other Cases

Mrs. Anna Kearney of Katrine, arrested by George Brooks of Albany avenue on a charge of reckless driving, was discharged when Mr. Brooks withdrew the information.

John J. McCabe of 29 Wall street, arrested on a charge of assault by Martin Brennan, had the hearing set down for September 4.
